Floating Lives: The Media of Asian Diasporas (Uqp Cultural and Media Policy Series) Stuart Cunningham

This is a unique examination of media and communication within some of Australia's main Asian diasporic groups - the Chinese, Indian, Vietnamese, and Thai communities. Going beyond the conventional cross-cultural studies of mainstream media consumption, this book focuses on the ethnic community as a determining force in negotiating new hybrid identities and cultures. Each community was the subject of in-depth field study, and the findings demonstrate diasporic experiences which are common to ethnic communities worldwide. Floating Lives makes available information and a deeper understanding for the analysis of: industries which have evolved to service Asian communities, such as music video, cinema and video retail outlets; the cultural dynamics of the material produced for and consumed by the communities; policy implications for cultural industries outside the mainstream
