If you can imagine the whole history of the world chronicled in a single book, then the happenings of the period between 1933 to 1945 can only be penned down in crimson, on sheets stained by the blood of millions of innocents. Millions of people, whose only fault was to be born in an era, where men who were drunk with ill-conceived notions of racial superiority let loose a carnage of a magnitude never seen before in the world.

Irma Grese was an SS guard who served at the concentration camps at Ravensbruck, Auschwitz and Bergen-Belsen, although in Bergen-Belsen, her services were rendered in the capacity of a warden. The nature and resultant efficacy of the said services can be inferred from the nick-name that the inmates of the camp gave her; "The hyena of Auschwitz".

In an era that was characterized by the unabashed cruelty of men serving under a tyrannical dictatorship, Irma Grese stood out amidst these by virtue of her own might. Her boundless loyalty to the Nazi cause, and the unflinching hatred towards the Jews and other inmates of the concentration camps made her the female Harbinger of death and doom in these camps.
