Brain Economics: The Spenta Model: Present Models, Research & Education Trends Dr. Jose Luis Abreu

Based on recent findings from economics and neurosciences, a conceptual decision-making model called The Spenta Model is presented. In addition, important discussions focus on the following issues: 1. General reflections on the relationship between neuroscience and decision making within the frames of economics (neuroeconomic); 2. Review and analysis of the major concepts that have been formulated to explain neuroeconomics; 3. Introductory studies on the concepts of consciousness bringing into the debate a neuroconsciousness view; 4. Current neuroeconomics models from the point of view of different researchers; 5. The main education and research trends in the field of neuroeconomics.
